CAT SCRATCHING POSTS AND GIFTS · AVAILABLE TO LICENSE

Cat Picasso

Your cat makes the painting.

On the post
Scratches reveal the colours.

On the wall
Unroll, frame, fit a fresh wrap.

30 × 40 cm
the wrap unrolls to a standard frame size

US$0.8 billion
a year spent on cat scratchers (one market estimate)

The problem

- Scratching posts wear out and get thrown away.
- Replacement wraps already sell, but they are only spare parts.
- Owners love sharing what their cats do, and a worn post gives them nothing to share.

How it works

- A removable wrap of coloured card layers under a dark outer layer.
- Each scratch tears through to a colour.
- When it’s finished, the wrap comes off, unrolls flat and goes in a frame.
- A fresh wrap goes on the post.

Why license it

- Every finished artwork sells a refill.
- Each one is unique and made by the buyer’s own cat.
- Printed card and two straps. Nothing new to manufacture.
- A wrap-only pack fits posts people already own.

Aaron Steele, inventor

Design concept

Reply to the covering email